SUMMIT COUNTY JUVENILE COURT UNVEILS REVAMPED WEBSITE

The Summit County Juvenile Court will roll out an updated website that reveals a fresh, new look and promises to be easier to navigate. The current website was first launched in 2006. The re-designed website is tentatively set to go live the morning of July 31st.

The new website offers faster response times, direct contact information, and enhanced functionality tools.

There are two primary new features on the revamped site. One will allow attorneys to have greater access to hearing dates, pertinent forms, and case file information. Those facets will be provided on a link displayed on the website's home page specifically for attorneys.

The other will provide the public the opportunity to pay fines and Court costs online. The website will provide a QR Code and a link to a page where information can be keystroked onto a form and sent directly to the Court's Clerk's Office for processing.

"Those elements are exactly what I was hoping to realize when the updating of the website began," said Judge Linda Tucci Teodosio. "I think a website should provide contact information and be accessible as possible to people who have contact with the Court."

The website will also contain a thorough look at all of the Court's departments and programming.

"Considerable effort and detail were placed in the construction of the new website," said Judge Teodosio. "I think special mention should be given to Todd Schauffler, who is our Director of Information Technology. He was the catalyst for this project, and I think he and the members of our staff who contributed to it did an outstanding job."
